HIST4123 US HISTORY TO 1877

United States history from the colonial period to Reconstruction. Emphasis on the interpretation of American political, social, economic, cultural and religious institutions and the history of ideas. A research project is required. Prerequisite: completion of an English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4151 HISTORY OF BASEBALL

This course explores baseball as a lens through which we may better understand American history. Since its inception, baseball has been the quintessential American game. Its rise as a pastime and institution—both locally and globally—parallels that of the United States itself, and its study reveals much about American life. This course analyzes not only how baseball reflected American politics and culture, but how it influenced them as well. To that end, this course explores topics such as American identity and mythmaking, the rise of spectacle and consumer culture, tensions between business and labor, politics of race and gender and globalization. Prerequisites: completion of an English sequence (4 credits)

HIST4171 TECHNOLOGY & SOCIETY

This course is a study of the relationship between technology and society from prehistoric times to the present day. Various topics are covered with emphasis given to the relationship of science, engineering, and technology. The social and cultural impact of technology throughout human history is a central aspect of the course. Prerequisite: ENGL1050 and ENGL2050 (3 credits)

HIST4175 MODERN AMERICAN HISTORY

The study of American civilization from the War Between the States to the turn of the 21st century. Emphasis will be placed on the cultural, economic, and political interactions of the melting pot experiences that led the United States to world power status. International states of affairs will also be studied. Prerequisite: completion of an English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4191 HISTORY OF TECHNOLOGY

An examination of the history of technology and its relationship to social and historical change. A special emphasis will be placed upon the transitions from one technological age to another. Prerequisite: Completion of an English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4200 PICTURES, MEDIA & US POLITICS

This history course examines relationships between images and politics from the American Revolution to the present. The course focuses on the developments in image technology and U.S. politics. In doing so, students will trace the rise of a national visual culture and modern political campaigns. Students will read history scholarship and analyze pictures from periods we study. The class will visit image collections throughout Boston to engage with historical prints, photographs and other visual materials. Prerequisite: completion of English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4223 BOSTON HISTORY

This course surveys Boston history, spanning the colonial era to our contemporary environment. The course will emphasize themes of urban development, immigration, politics and segregation by race and class. Students will contribute to digital projects analyzing the city's past while also preserving it for the public. Prerequisite: completion of an English Sequence (4 credits) fall

HIST4251 THE CIVIL WAR

The course deals with the central American event of the nineteenth century. The years before the war, the war itself, Reconstruction, and the meaning of the war today are among the topics studied. Prerequisite: Completion of an English sequence (4 credits)

HIST4271 HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II

Students will be exposed to the events that precipitated the conflict and to the major battles and personalities of the war. The political results of the war and the start of the Cold War will also be examined. Prerequisite: ENGL1050 and ENGL2050 (4 credits)

HIST4300 AMERICAN URBAN HISTORY

This history course examines American city life from the Revolutionary War to the present. The course focuses on the way culture and politics evolved within the context of a changing urban landscape. In addition to reading historical scholarship students will analyze primary sources such as historical images, newspapers and films. We will also visit local museums and cultural institutions to learn about the history of Boston. Prerequisite: completion of English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4351 HISTORY OF ANCIENT AFRICA

This course provides an introductory survey of the historical development of Mediterranean, Sahara, and Sub-Saharan African societies from human evolution to the beginning of European colonialism. It explores how social groups responded to Africa's varied geographical regions and created diverse political, economic, and cultural systems. The course also reflects on how elements of ancient African culture continue to influence modern globalized societies. Prerequisite: Completion of an English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4400 ENVIRONMENTAL HISTORY AND IMPACT ASSESSMENT

This course surveys the environmental history of New England, spanning the period prior to European contact to the present including farming, industrialization, Romanticism, hiking, and conservation of resources including timber and lobster. The course also introduces students to the purpose and nature of environmental assessment reports and studies. Working as a team, students develop an environmental assessment of a well-known historic feature of the regional built environment. Prerequisite: completion of an English Sequence (4 credits)

HIST4451 HISTORY OF GENDER & SEXUALITY IN THE US

In this course students will examine the history of sexuality and gender in the United States through reading of historical, theoretical and scientific texts.
